Warrior Trails

By Cathy Focarazzo

Friday night at the Redondo football game, five tearful shocked girls went out to the track during halftime and received their corsages.

These were the Top Five girls for the Homecoming Court. Out of these five, one girl will be selected as Homecoming Queen to rule over Homecoming Activities Friday night. The five lucky girls were Lynne Clotti, Anna Evangelatos, Alice Evans, Susie Griffiths, and Laura Hennesey. It will be another week of anticipation for these girls, one of whom shall be the Queen.

Last night, Mrs. Linford and the mass media class sponsored a spooky light show-dance in West High's cafeteria. Students in the class sold tickets for the event which had to be successful, especially if Mrs. Linford was behind it.

In the near future West plans on having music played by a student disc jockey during the lunch periods. Try-outs for disc jockey will be held soon and students will be required to put on a five-minute presentation, of which the best will win.

I AM QUITE convinced that this year West has experienced more catastrophes in Bay League than any other school. It wasn't enough that the sprinklers went off during one game but last week at the Redondo game (which, incidentally, we won) fog came in so heavy that we couldn't see the visitor's bleachers or the visitors, for that matter.

Everytime the ball was kicked it seemed to disappear in thin air! It really was a weird sensation not to be able to see the game or your opponents clearly, but after the way we beat them, I doubt if they wanted to see us anyway.

I should be shot for forgetting to congratulate cheerleaders Linda Stonick, Alice Evans, Teri Powers, Debi Eisman, and Nina Patterson, for winning the fifth place trophy at Arroyo High School competition! Congratulations!

Football season is almost at a close and I won't be able to make any more of my famous predictions, but nevertheless the Bay League "baby" wishes Mira Costa the best of luck Friday night cause they're sure going to need it!

Chamber Again Warns Against Confidence Men

Federal Trade Commission, Better Business Bureau, and Chamber of Commerce sources have issued new warnings about many recurring schemes against the businessman or other citizens.

The Torrance Area Chamber of Commerce has cautioned its members, and the public, once again to keep up their defense against those who are out for an easy or dishonest buck.

Warehouse firms handling building tools and supplies have been victimized by a mild-mannered, middle-aged man using fake purchase orders. He usually claims to be an employe of a construction firm in need of certain tools or supplies in a big rush. He usually walks off with about $300 worth of material and isn't seen again.

FLATTERY goes a long way in supporting publishers of volumes the Better Business people just can't seem to get a look at. Businessmen are asked for biographical material—and for $19.50 or whatever the publication price is given—for such books as "Personalities of the West and Midwest" or "Outstanding Personalities of the West and Midwest."

Unordered merchandise continues to be a favorite racket. The Chamber reminds that the rights and obligations of consumers in this line are spelled out in a recent policy directive of the Federal Trade Commission which says the practice of shipping unordered merchandise is widespread and growing.

CONSUMERS are not obligated to accept or pay for such merchandise if they haven't ordered it and don't use it; neither are they obliged to use their homes as storage places. Unless the shipper calls for it in a reasonable time, it may be disposed of.
